

Transformational Leader as Coach

Jackie Woodside CPC, LICSW

Jackie Woodside is a best-selling author, TEDx speaker, seminar leader, and professional development trainer and coach who is passionate about the expanding the edge of human potential.

Jackie provides custom training programs, workshops, and keynote speeches for businesses, government and non-profit organizations, and spiritual centers around the country.

For more information: JackieWoodside.com

TESTIMONIALS

Jackie's work with my team was truly transformative. Her work to help identify the primary needs for our team and her ability to hone in on those areas was exactly the training and support we needed. I saw a real change in my colleagues; the way we relate to each other and to our work, as well as our focus and support of our shared goals. Months later we are still using the shared language we developed to communicate and support each other, and even in very high stress times, we can refocus on our goal and support each other successfully. I look forward to working with Jackie again in the future. I think our team's potential is unlimited and with Jackie's coaching and training we can and will effect real, positive change.

Caitlyn Smith, Director of Gallaudet University Interpreting Services

The tools and concepts I learned in the Transformational Leader as Coach program were instrumental in my ability to move my team from a group surviving in the workplace to one that is THRIVING. Our ability to discuss how to intentionally create a work environment that is both productive and positive has resulted in a raised energy level to use as we continue to reach our collective goals.

Kristin Mulrooney, Director, Center for Bilingual Teaching and Learning

Best Practices

Because learning is not an event, but an active, facilitated process, the Transformational Leadership and Engagement program employs best practices in training and development that are cumulative and integrative in the delivery approach. Teaching methods include in-person interactive lectures, discussion, small group activities, individual reflection and journaling, specific assignments work to practice skills and integrate learning between sessions, live coaching in the classroom and role-playing activities. Each participant will be coached by the instructor with regard to their skill development of course topics.

Intended Outcomes

Managers will learn to effectively manage personality clashes, difficult personalities, bullying situations (before they erupt), challenges with performance, and will learn how to initiate and sustain a high performance, motivational environment. They will develop leadership and coaching skills that enhance their professional development and ownership of their responsibility of developing their team members skills and capacities.

As managers develop greater self-confidence and skill in managing day-to-day performance issues and conflicts, less of these issues will raise to the higher level of the organization. This frees up time and energy at the executive level of the organization to focus on higher level goals, as well as enhance service delivery, as well as patient and employee satisfaction.